

You and a guest are invited to Meta Moments- Transitioning from Treatment to Employment

Economic stability and employment are important factors associated with the successful rehabilitation of women who abuse substances. When women come to Meta House, they are typically unemployed, undereducated, living in poverty, and struggling with addiction.

As a component of their treatment, women at Meta House work with Life Skill Counselors to prepare for a productive life in recovery. Graduates of Meta House find fulfillment in full-time employment. They are proud to be contributing members of their communities, providing for their families, and maintaining sobriety while building a stable future. At Transitioning from Treatment to Employment, find out how Meta House prepares women to enter or reenter the workforce and build successful careers, and hear from a woman who has successfully made this transition.
